College of Marin, Kentfield Campus Room SMN 112

$160/CNGA Members $180/Non-Members $95/Students

Optional Day 2: May 15, 2016 – 9:00am to 4:00pm

Mt. Tamalpais, meeting place to be announced

Day 1, College of Marin in the Classroom:

Grasses are fun and easy to identify! Our goal is to learn the basic skills of identifying grasses and provide an overview of the native grass distribution in California. We will learn about California's grassland ecology, compare native and non-native grasses and become skilled at recognizing the basic groups and common species by working with plant samples in the classroom. We will review both the Hitchcock's tribe method of identifying grasses as well as the artificial key methodology focusing on the important distinguishing traits. A class syllabus and basic keys will be provided, and dissecting scopes available for use. Morning refreshments are provided. Optional lunch available for additional charge.

Optional Day 2, Mt. Tamalpais field day:

A full day field tour of grasslands on Mt. Tamalpais: see dozens of grass species in the field, and learn some of the grassland types in the area. Field itinerary will be provided after registration, but expect some non-strenuous off-trail hiking. Space for this trip is limited, sign up early to be assured a spot!

No food is provided for this trip, so please bring water, snacks and lunch.
