

CALIFORNIA NATIVES FOR CHAPARRAL HABITAT

Marin county's shrub habitat, called chaparral, is very distinctive. This plant community is dominated by tough-leaved, evergreen shrubs well adapted to extremely dry conditions in gravelly or sandy soils that do not retain moisture and lack a layer of leaf litter. To conserve moisture, a number of them have very small leaves or lose their leaves during the heat of summer. If this sounds like the conditions on your property, chaparral plants like wild lilac, manzanita, toyon and Cleveland Sage will thrive there.
